

Patrick Farris represents Warren County on the Park Advisory

Commission. Patrick Farris is from Bladen County, North Carolina, and grew up along its Cape Fear River. Farris was a history instructor in Warren County and the City of Winchester from 1998 to 2004. Since then he has held the position of executive director of the Warren Heritage Society in Front Royal. Farris has served on several boards and commissions involved in the development of historical resources and tourism in the Shenandoah Valley, including the Battle of Front Royal Committee for the Town of Front Royal and the Publications Committee of the Winchester-Frederick County Historical Society. Currently, Farris is President of the French and Indian War Foundation based in Winchester. He has been appointed by the City Council of Winchester to the Board of Architectural Review and the Tree Commission, and by the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities to head that organization's Shenandoah Valley Branch. Farris, his wife, and their three sons live in Winchester. Farris has a B.S. from the University of North Carolina and an M.A. from Indiana University.

